

Class Power Tuner by Furyogen WIP

World of ClaudeCraft: operator reference and complete tunable surface.
Generated 2026-08-09 from the live content tables.

9 classes, 27 specializations	308 abilities
139 weapon swing profiles	1545 individual sliders

What this is

The Class Power Tuner is an operator-facing balance lever in the admin dashboard. It exposes every aspect of every ability of every class as a multiplier slider, plus the white-swing damage and swing timer of every weapon. Saved changes are stored per realm and applied to the world at the next server restart.

It exists because two of the nine classes have been reworked and now outperform the other seven. Closing that gap previously meant editing content source and shipping a build; with the tuner it is a slider and a restart.

This edition follows Shaman, Hunter and Priest, the three classes queued for redesign next (PR #2218), through the dashboard: they are the ones a tuner will be reaching for as those reworks land.

Work in progress. The tool is complete and the mechanism below is stable; what moves under it is the CONTENT. The tables at the back and the screenshots are a snapshot of the kit on `release/v0.36.0`, and the class reworks are still arriving one wave at a time. No re-engineering is needed when a wave lands: the catalog is derived from the live content tables, never hand-authored, so a redesigned class appears with the right sliders on its own and this document is simply regenerated. Read the mechanism as settled and the numbers as of today.

Who can use it

A tuner is someone assigned to the role by Levy Street, the project owner. It is not something an operator can grant themselves or pick up by holding another staff role: the designation is handed out deliberately, to the few people trusted to move class balance, and it is revoked the same way.

Technically it is a dedicated staff role, `tuner`, carrying exactly two permissions: `tuning.read` (see the sliders and the change history) and `tuning.write` (save a document). The role carries nothing else: an account holding only `tuner` cannot see player accounts, act on players, or read the anti-bot internals, and every other admin endpoint answers it with 403. The permission is deliberately kept out of the read-only `viewer` bundle, so the balance surface reaches named people rather than every read-only seat.

Levy Street assigns it with the grant script (or the Staff page, for an account that already holds staff roles). Every save is attributed to the account that made it in the change history below, so the trail always names which assigned tuner moved a number and why:

node scripts/grant_admin.mjs <username> --roles tuner

How a change reaches the world

1. A tuner moves sliders in the dashboard and saves, with a note explaining why.
2. The document is validated, stored as one row per realm, and appended to an audit trail recording the before and after documents, the operator and the note. An unchanged save records nothing.
3. The page reports the change as pending a restart. The running world is untouched.
4. At the next server boot the document is installed onto the ability and item tables once, before the world is constructed. The realm then reports the saved and running documents as in sync.

Tuning is boot-scoped on purpose. Swapping ability values under a running world would change numbers underneath in-flight casts and cooldowns, and would leave the server and every connected client disagreeing for as long as the change took to propagate. The realm hands its installed document to each client in the connection handshake, so client tooltips, cooldown pips and cost predictions describe the numbers the server actually resolves.

How a slider works

Every slider is a multiplier from 0.10x to 3.00x in 0.01 steps, with 1.00x meaning "exactly as authored". The shipped values are always shown, and once a slider moves, the resulting values are shown beside them.

The multiplier is applied according to what the underlying number means, which is why the tool can be trusted with fields that are not plain magnitudes:

- Magnitudes (damage, healing, seconds, yards, costs) scale directly. A whole number stays whole.
- Multipliers whose neutral point is 1 (a snare's 0.5 speed multiplier, a 2x threat multiplier, a 1.4 haste aura) move by their distance from 1. Buffing a 50% snare by 20% makes it slow harder, not turn into a speed boost.
- Normalized shares (a resurrect health fraction, a proc chance) scale and then clamp to at most the whole.
- Marker auras (stance flags, one-shot empower tokens, form toggles) are never offered a slider: scaling a marker cannot help and can only break a predicate that reads it.

A slider that provably cannot change anything (a zero magnitude, a multiplier already at its neutral 1) is not rendered, so every control on the page does something.

The classes this is pointed at next

Warrior and Mage were reworked first and pulled ahead of the rest; the tuner exists to close that gap without a content release. The next three classes through the same door are Shaman, Hunter and Priest, whose v0.29 redesigns are integrated in PR #2218 on `levy-street/world-of-claudecraft`, nine specializations in total:

Class	Specialization	The loop the redesign builds
Shaman	Thundercall (Elemental)	Lightning caster: Fulmination banking, spent by shocks
	Warspirit (Enhancement)	Dual wield: Galeheart echoes and Flow State
	Spiritmend (Restoration)	Healer: Mending Current deposits, consumed by Cascading Mend
Hunter	Packlord (Beast Mastery)	Pet focused: Stampede, with Pack Command resets
	Coldsight (Marksmanship)	Ranged damage on the Cold Read mastery

Class	Specialization	The loop the redesign builds
	Fieldcraft (Survival)	Physical damage, Bloodhook contributions
Priest	Doctrine (Discipline)	Covenant loop, hybrid healing and damage
	Benison (Holy)	Vigil-based healing loop
	Vespers (Shadow)	Effigy loop, damage scaling off it

The redesigned spec identities above are already live, and the tables at the back of this document list every ability each of them can cast today, with the sliders it exposes. What PR #2218 still changes is the kit behind those identities, and for Hunter the resource itself: mana is replaced by Focus. Neither needs any work in the tuner. The catalog is derived from the live content tables and the sliders come from the abilities' own effects, so on the boot after that PR lands, the redesigned kit appears here with the right sliders, the Focus costs show up on the resource-cost channel, and any retired ability drops out. The only thing a rework can require is a row in the classification table, and the guard below is what says so out loud.

Why the coverage stays complete

The tuner does not carry a hand-written list of knobs. One traversal of an ability definition both lists the sliders and applies them, so the controls offered and the numbers changed cannot drift apart, and the catalog the dashboard renders is derived from the live content tables. A reworked or brand-new class therefore appears with the right sliders the moment its content lands, with no dashboard work.

What keeps that honest is a guard test that walks every shipped ability and fails when it finds a numeric field the classification table does not account for, plus a second guard requiring every weapon the simulation reads to be present. A class rework that adds a new kind of number cannot quietly ship an untunable one: the build goes red until the field is classified.

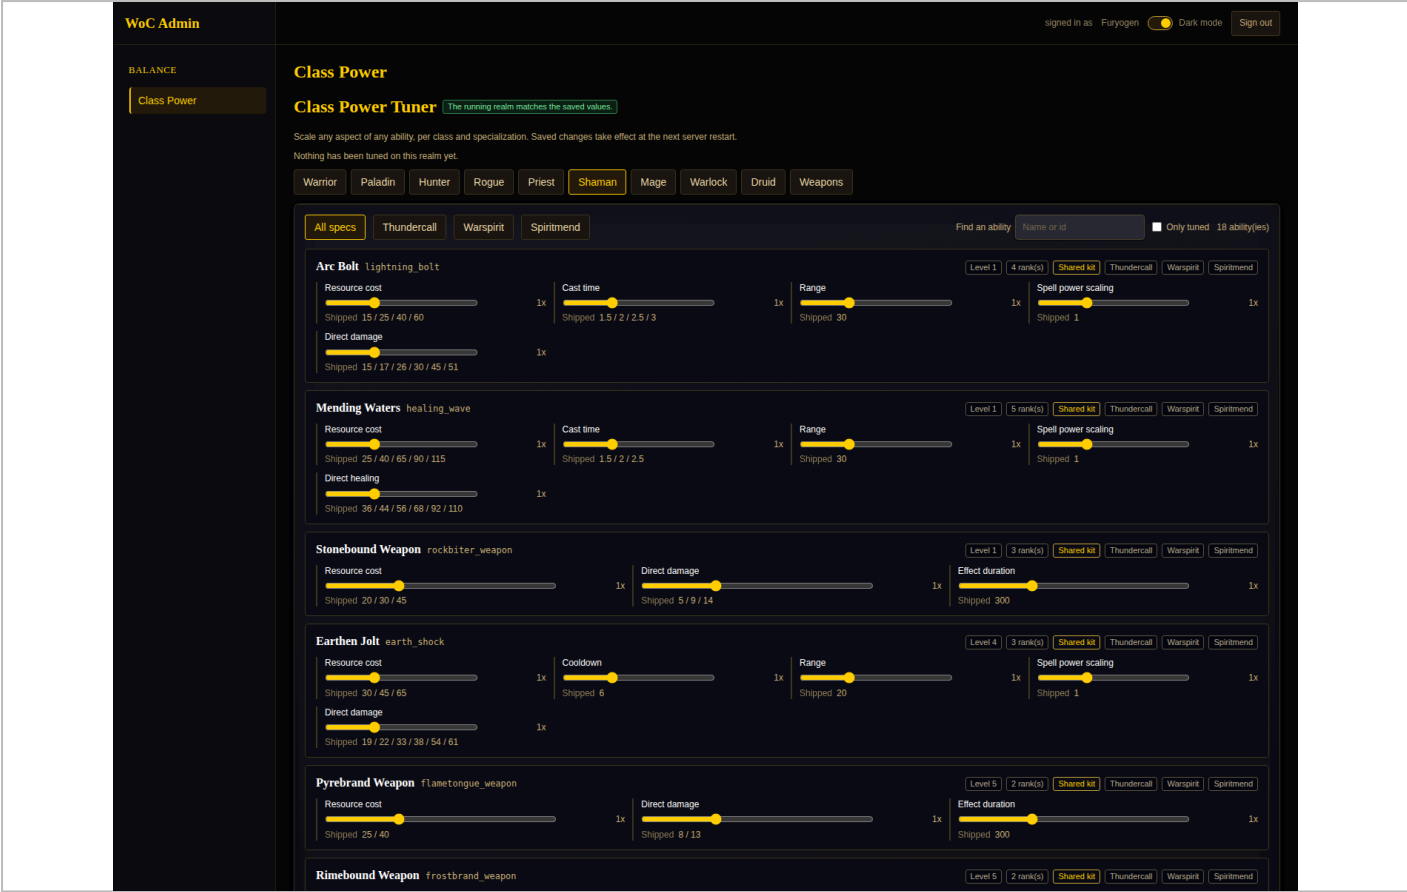

The channel vocabulary

A channel is one aspect of an ability. The set is closed: every tunable number in the game is classified into exactly one of these, and a guard test fails the build if a class rework adds a number that fits none of them.

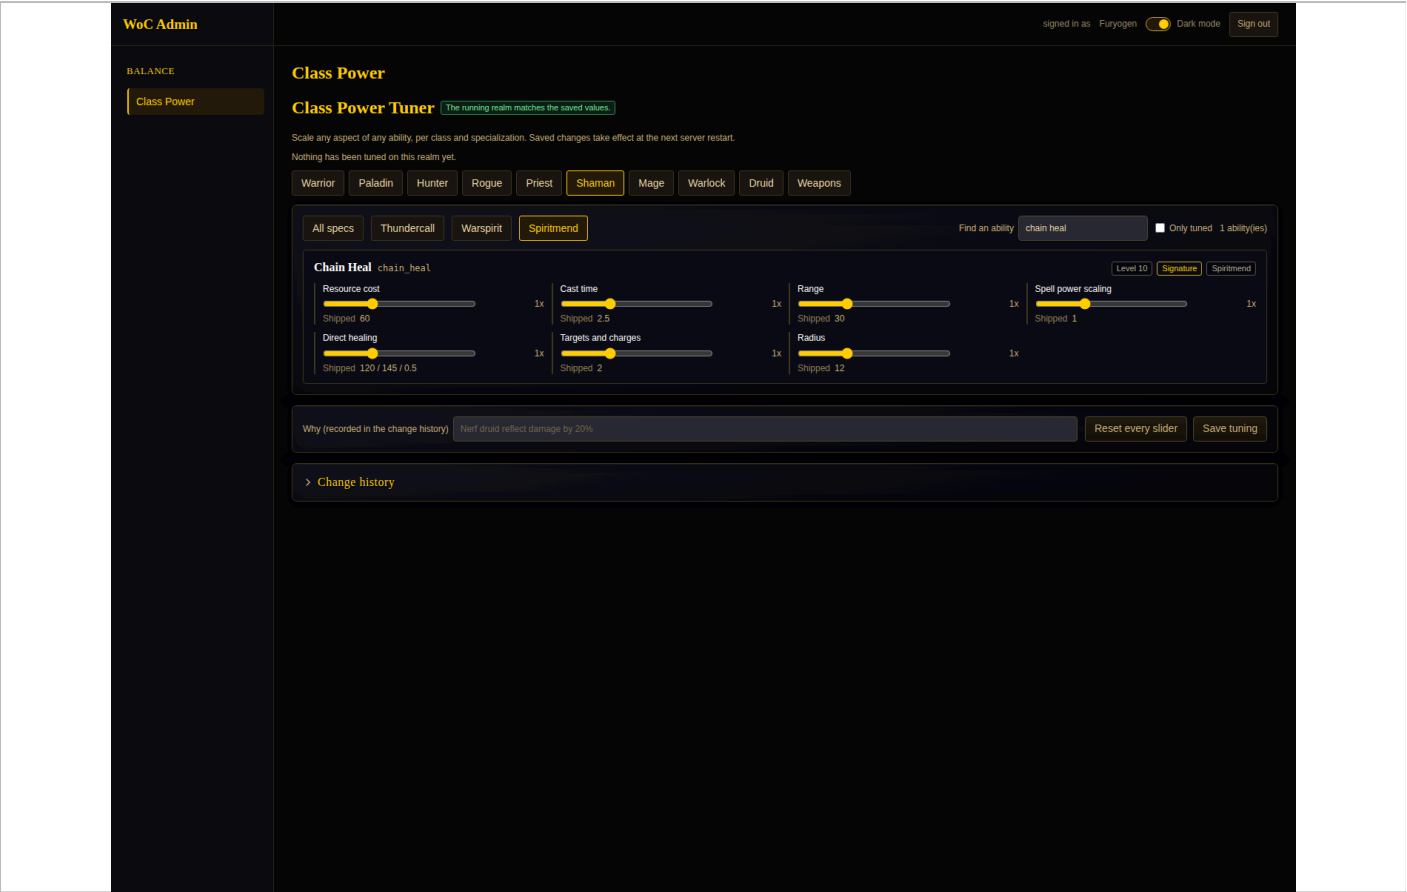

Channel	What it moves
Direct damage damage_direct	Instant and cast damage: direct rolls, weapon-strike bonuses, weapon multipliers, imbue and judgement damage.
Damage over time damage_dot	The total of a damage-over-time effect, and channelled drain ticks.
Area damage damage_aoe	Area, chain, ground-zone, cone and orb damage.
Finisher damage damage_finisher	Combo-point finisher damage: the base, the per-point scaling and its variance.
Reflect damage per hit damage_reflect	Damage a thorns-style aura deals back per melee hit taken.
Direct healing heal_direct	Direct, area and chain healing, plus percentage-of-health heals, leech shares and resurrect health fractions.
Healing over time heal_hot	The total of a healing-over-time effect.
Absorb shielding absorb	Shield amounts, including per-resource absorb rates.
Threat	Flat bonus threat and the threat multiplier on an ability, per rank.

Channel	What it moves
threat
Spell power scaling spell_power	A multiplier on the ability spell power / attack power coefficient. Offered only where something on the ability actually scales with power.
Resource cost resource_cost	Rage, mana or energy cost per rank, spend caps, and self-damage costs.
Resource generated resource_gain	Resource an ability grants: rage on interrupt or on area hits, mana from life tap, combo points awarded.
Cooldown cooldown	The ability cooldown, and the internal cooldown of a charge-limited aura.
Cast time cast_time	Cast time per rank and the total duration of a channel.
Aura and modifier strength effect_magnitude	Aura, buff and debuff strength: attack power drains, damage-done percentages, haste and speed multipliers, snare strength, proc chances.
Effect duration duration_effect	How long a beneficial or damage-over-time effect lasts: buffs, shields, zones, DoTs and HoTs.
Control duration duration_control	How long an impairment lasts: stun, root, silence, fear, polymorph, incapacitate, snare, interrupt lockout.
Radius radius	Area of effect radius, and cone angle.
Range range	Cast range, including the minimum range of a ranged shot.
Distance distance	Travel and displacement distances: blink, knockback, dash, and the boarball kicks.
Targets and charges targets	Target counts and stack limits: chain jumps, maximum targets, dispel counts, sunder stacks, ability charges.
White swing damage swing_damage	The minimum and maximum of a weapon auto-attack ("white") damage roll.
Swing timer swing_speed	Seconds between auto-attack swings. Above 1 is slower, which lowers damage per second.

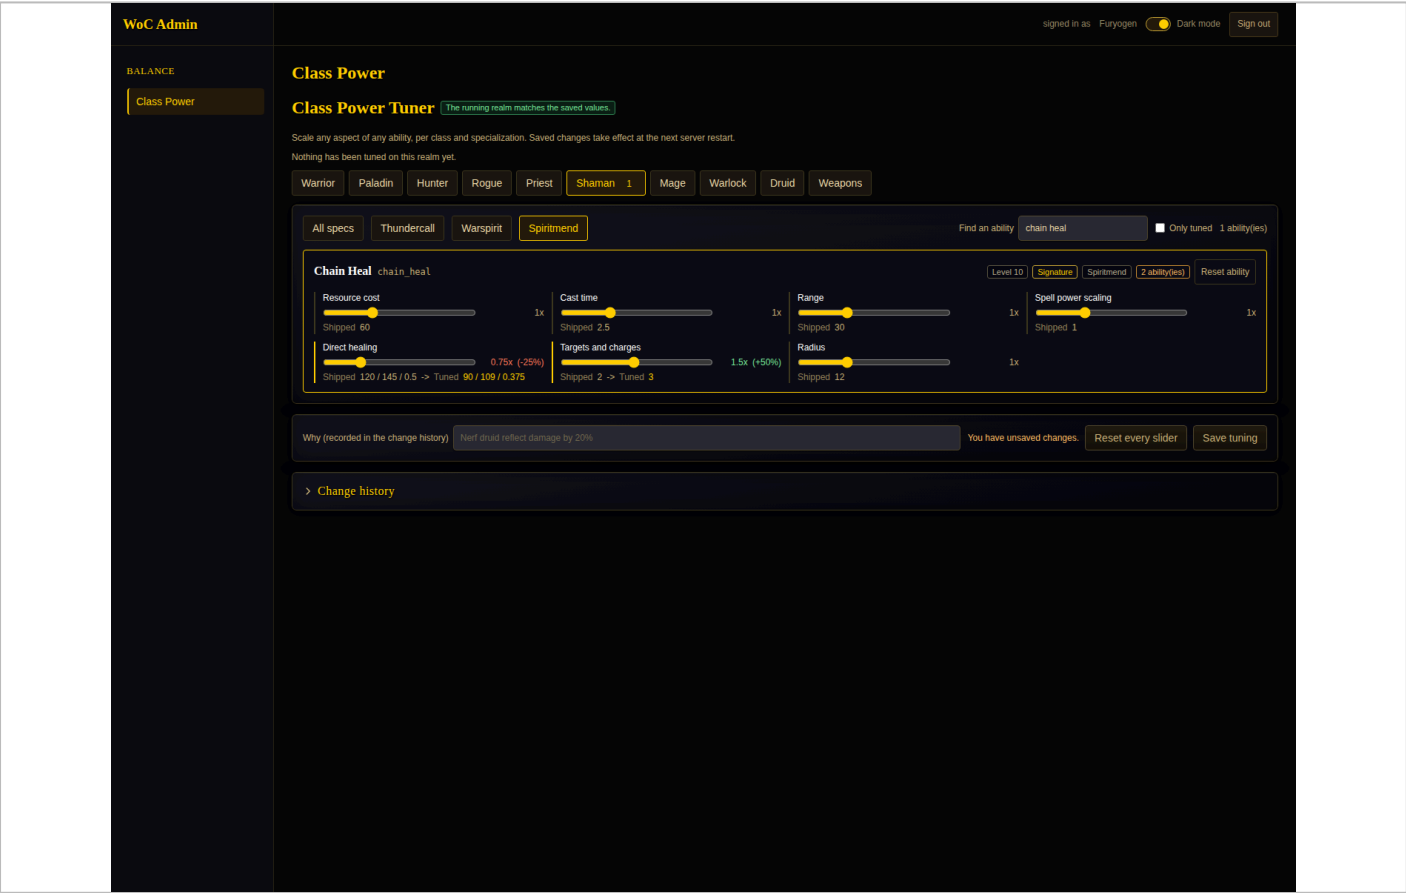

The dashboard

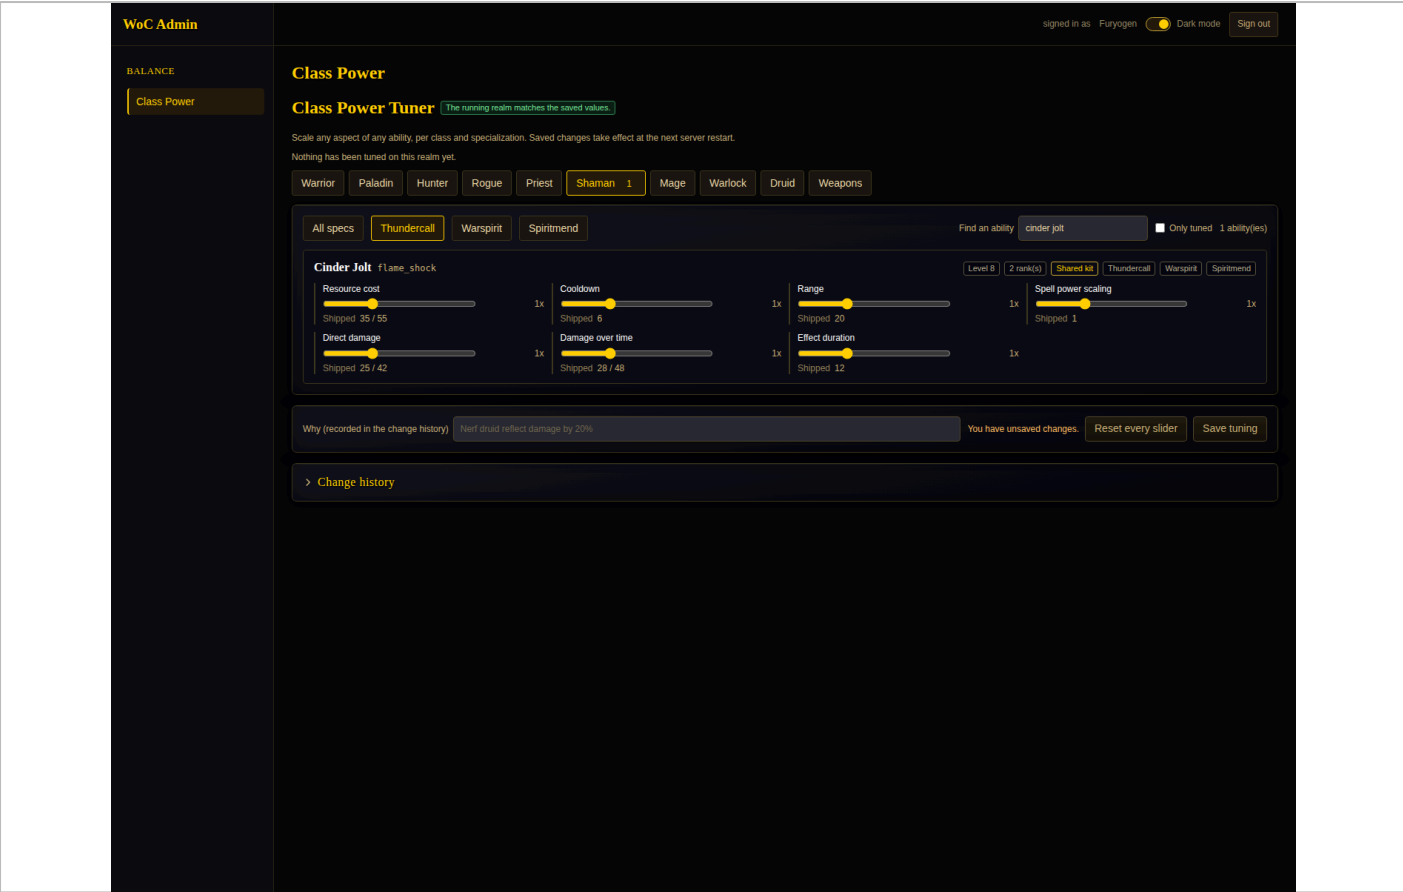

01-overview-shaman — The tuner as an operator opens it: one window per class, plus the Weapons window at the end of the row. Shaman is selected, the first of the three classes queued for redesign.

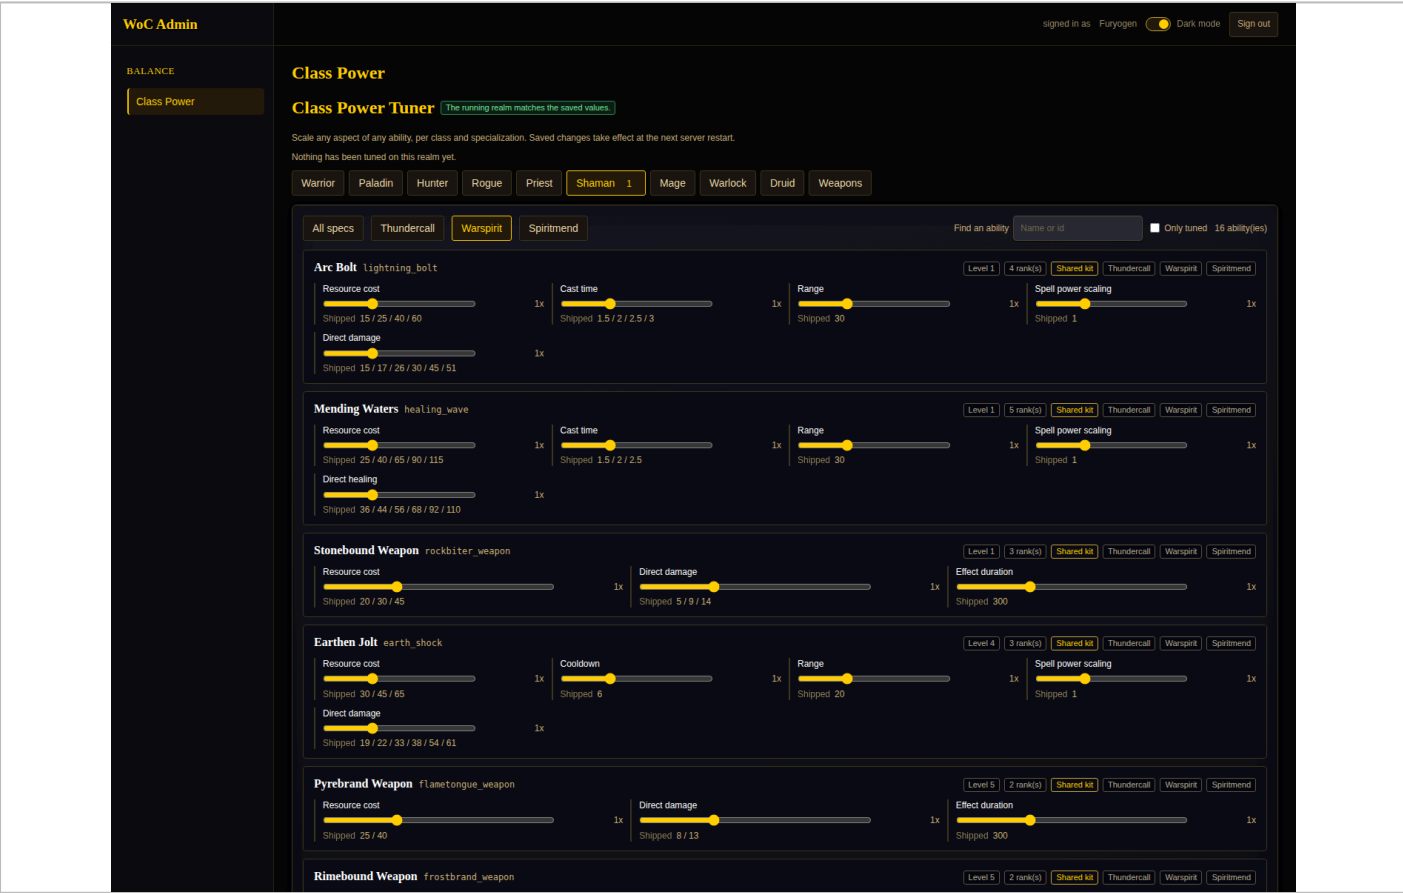

02-shaman-spiritmend-chain-heal — Spiritmend (Restoration) Chain Heal at the shipped numbers. One spell, seven independent sliders: its healing, how many allies it chains to, the chain radius, its cost, cast time, range and spell power scaling.

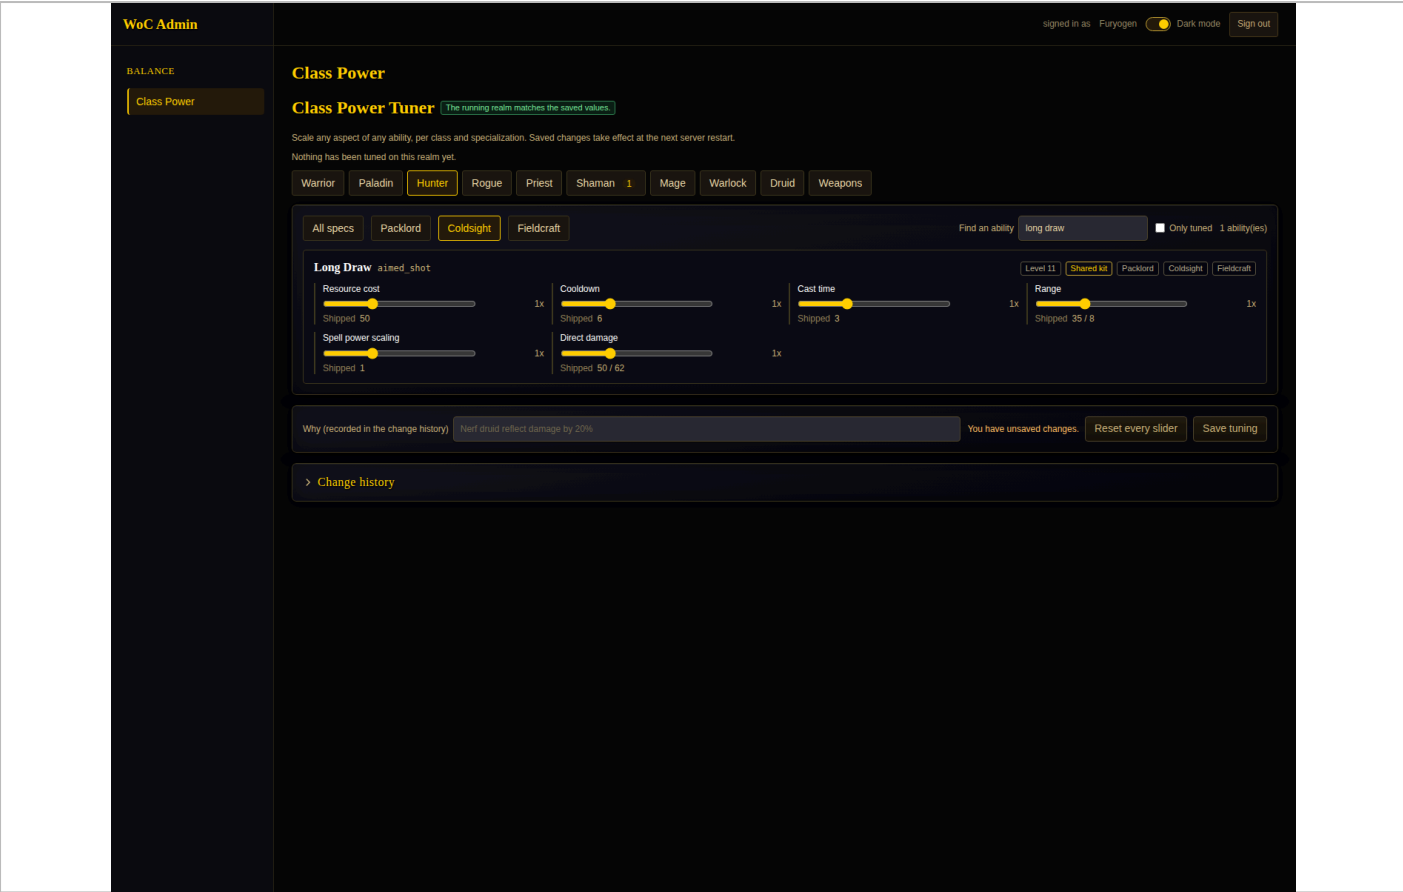

03-shaman-chain-heal-tuned — The same spell with healing pulled to 0.75x and its chain widened to 1.50x. Each aspect moves on its own, so throughput can be traded for reach rather than both moving together.

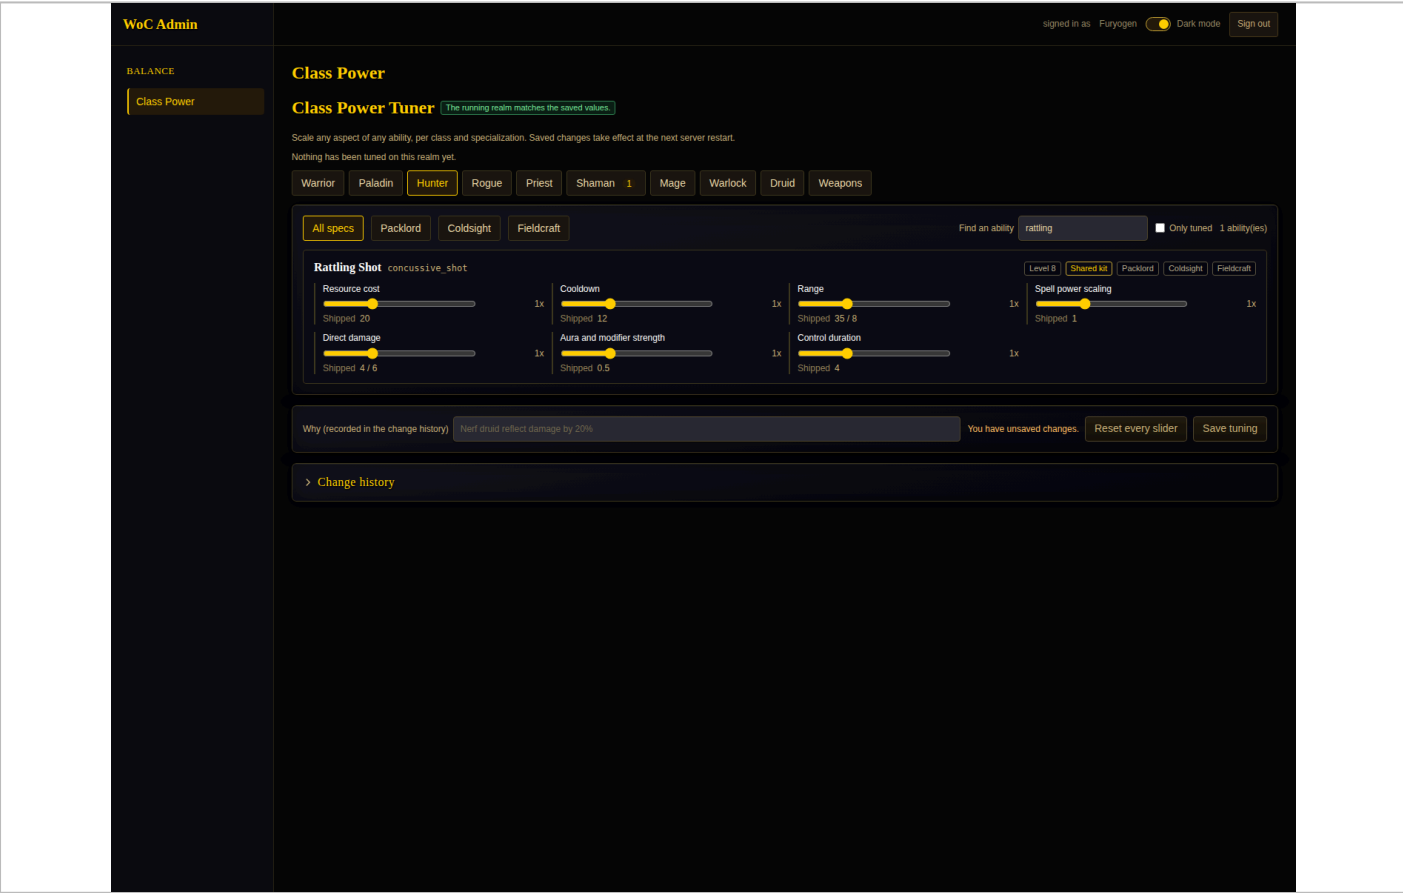

04-shaman-thundercall-cinder-jolt — Thundercall (Elemental) Cinder Jolt. A shock that lands a hit and leaves a burn gets a separate slider for the direct damage and for the damage over time, so the burst and the sustained portion are tuned apart.

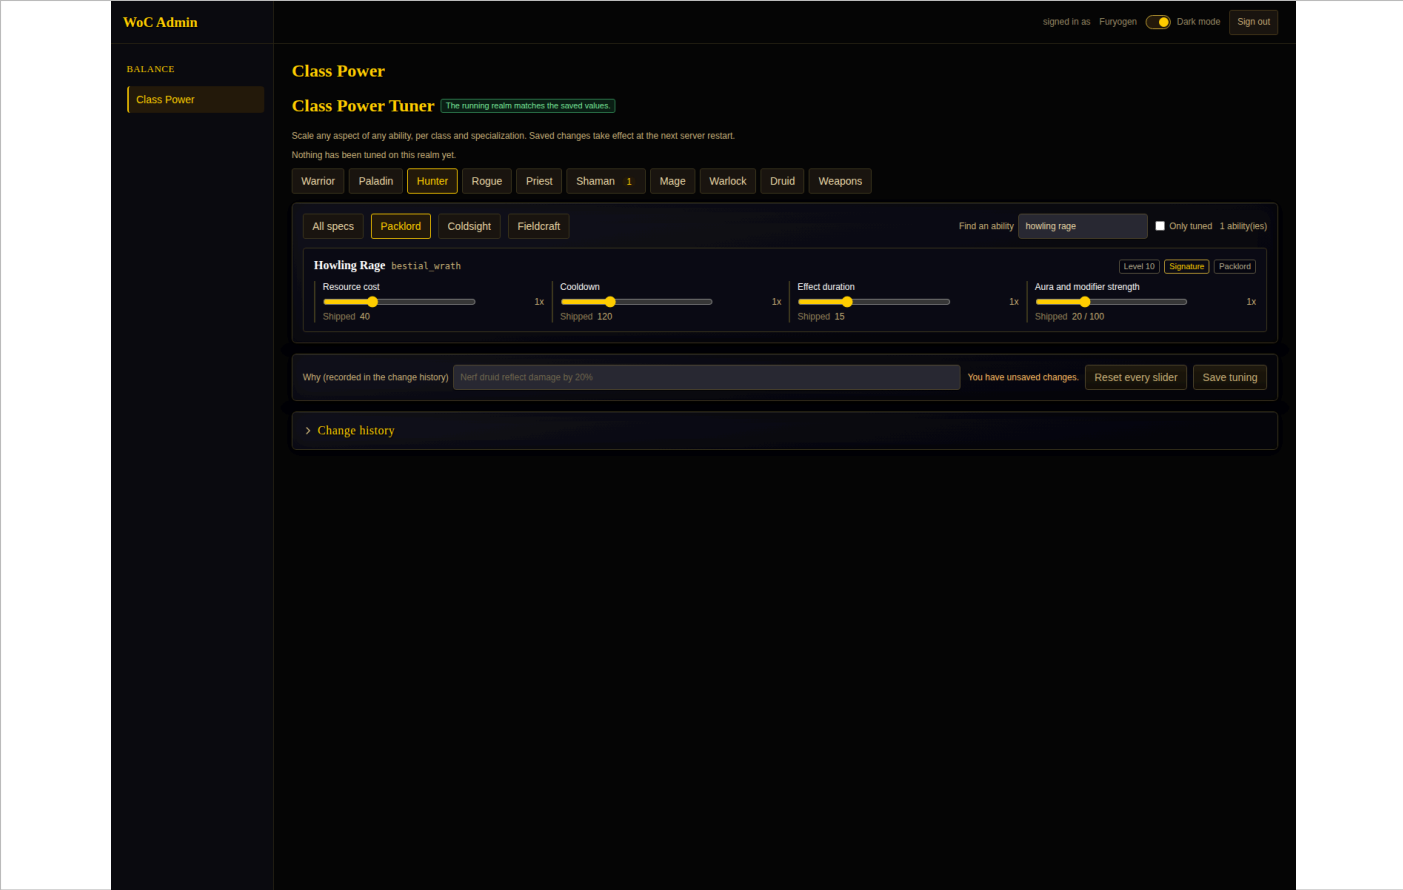

05-shaman-warspirit-spec-filter — Warspirit (Enhancement), the dual-wield melee spec. The class window filtered to one specialization lists every ability that spec can actually cast, including its spec-gated and signature kit.

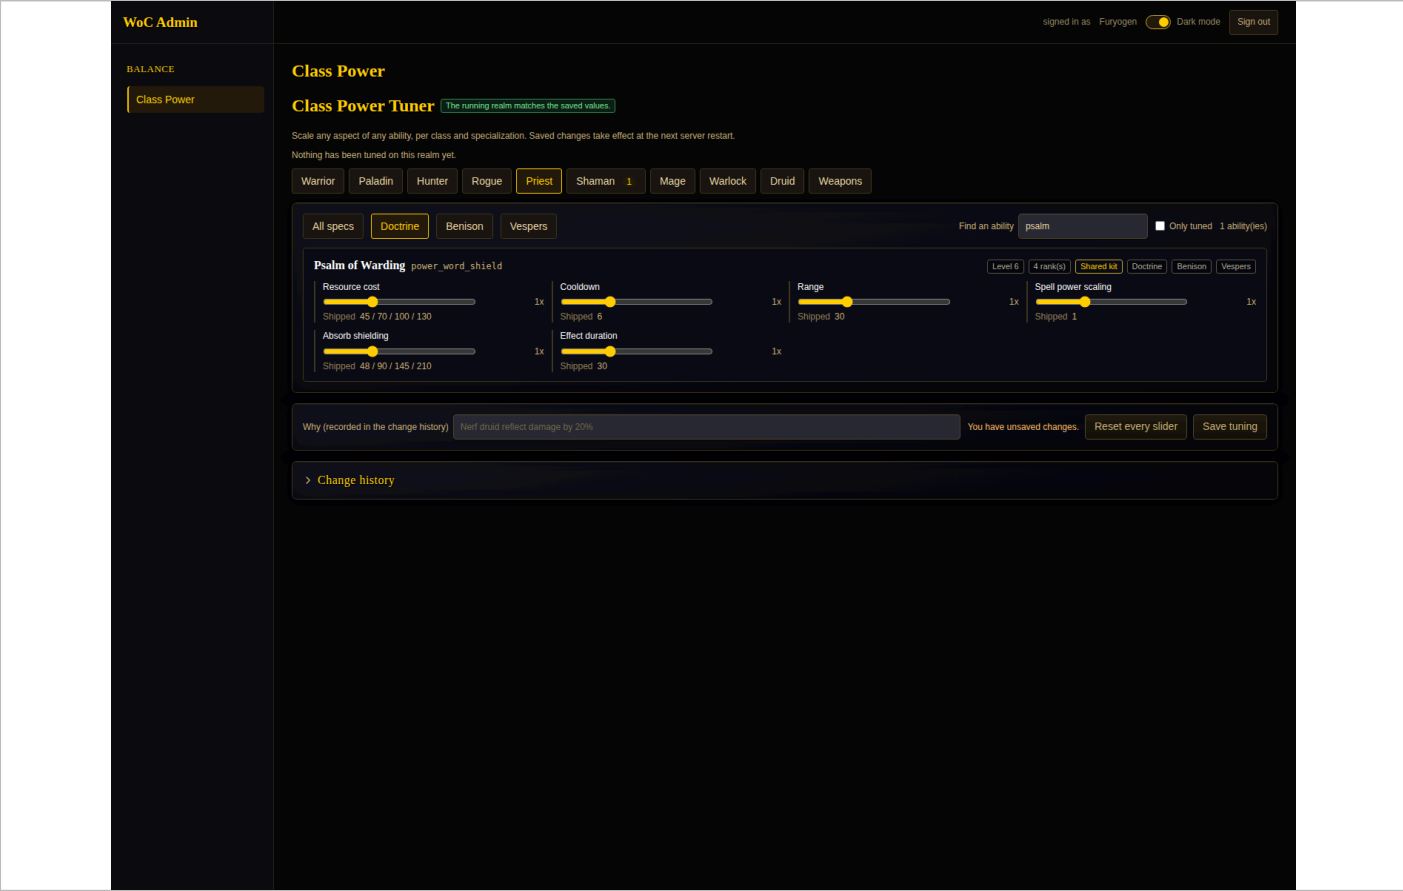

06-hunter-coldsight-long-draw — Hunter, Coldsight (Marksmanship): Long Draw. A cast ranged shot, with its cast time and its ranged-attack-power scaling as separate levers from its damage.

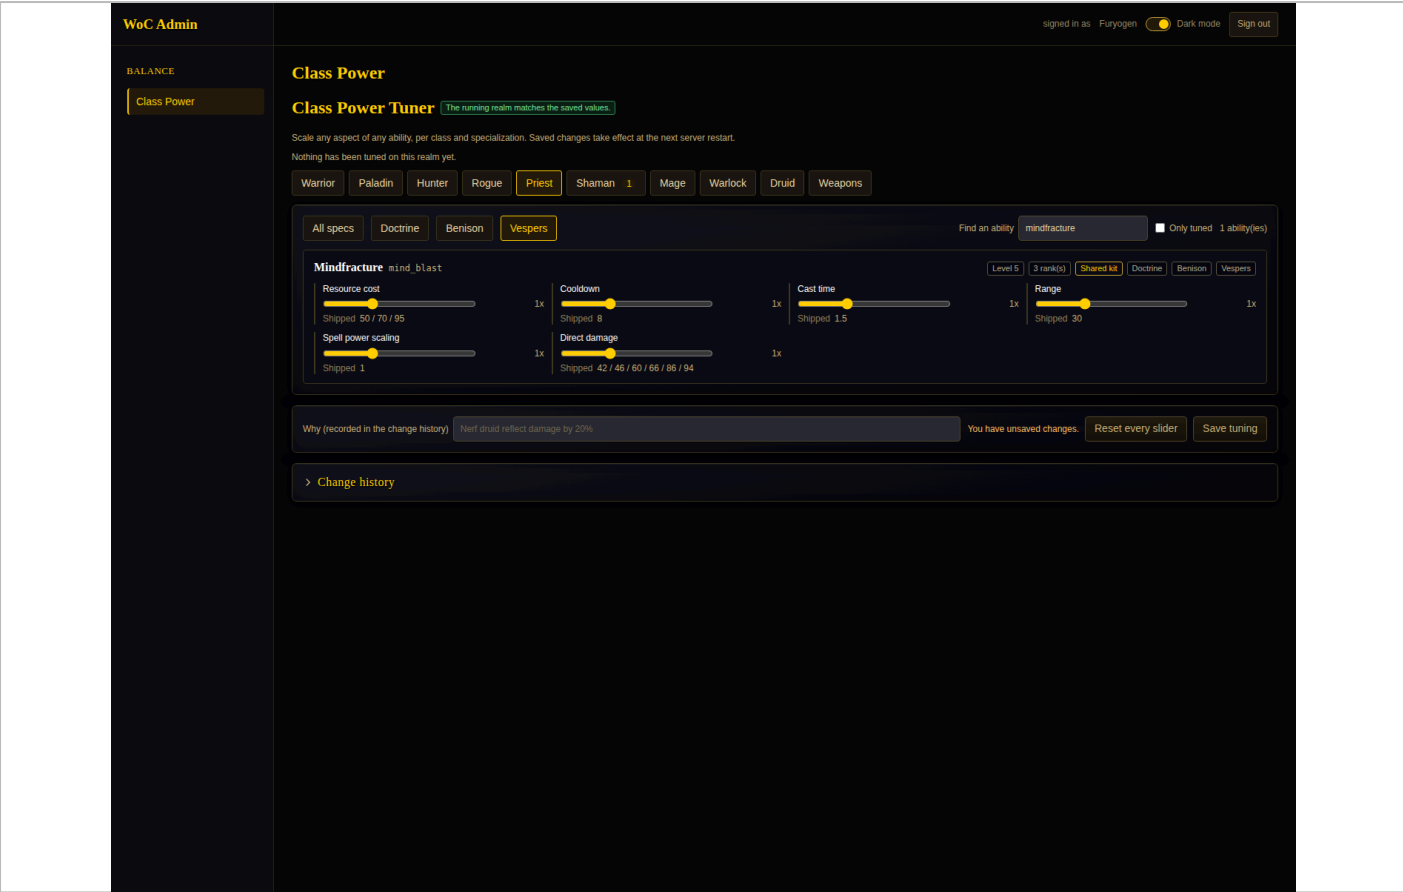

07-hunter-rattling-shot — Rattling Shot. A control shot carries its snare strength and its control duration as their own channels, so the shot can be made to hit harder without also holding a target longer.

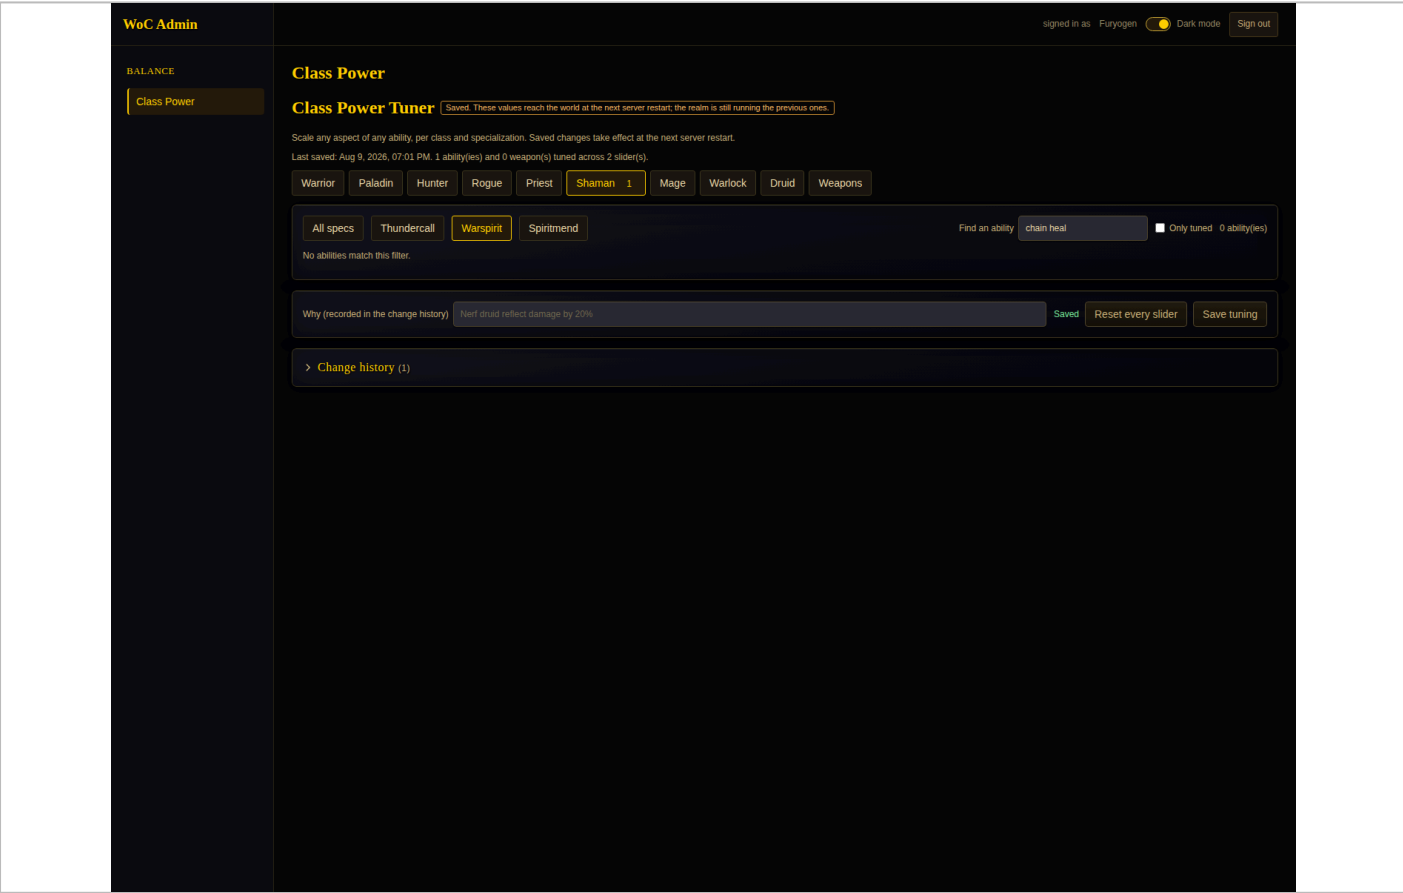

08-hunter-packlord-signature — Packlord (Beast Mastery) and its signature cooldown, Howling Rage. A spec signature is marked as such and scoped to the one spec that has it.

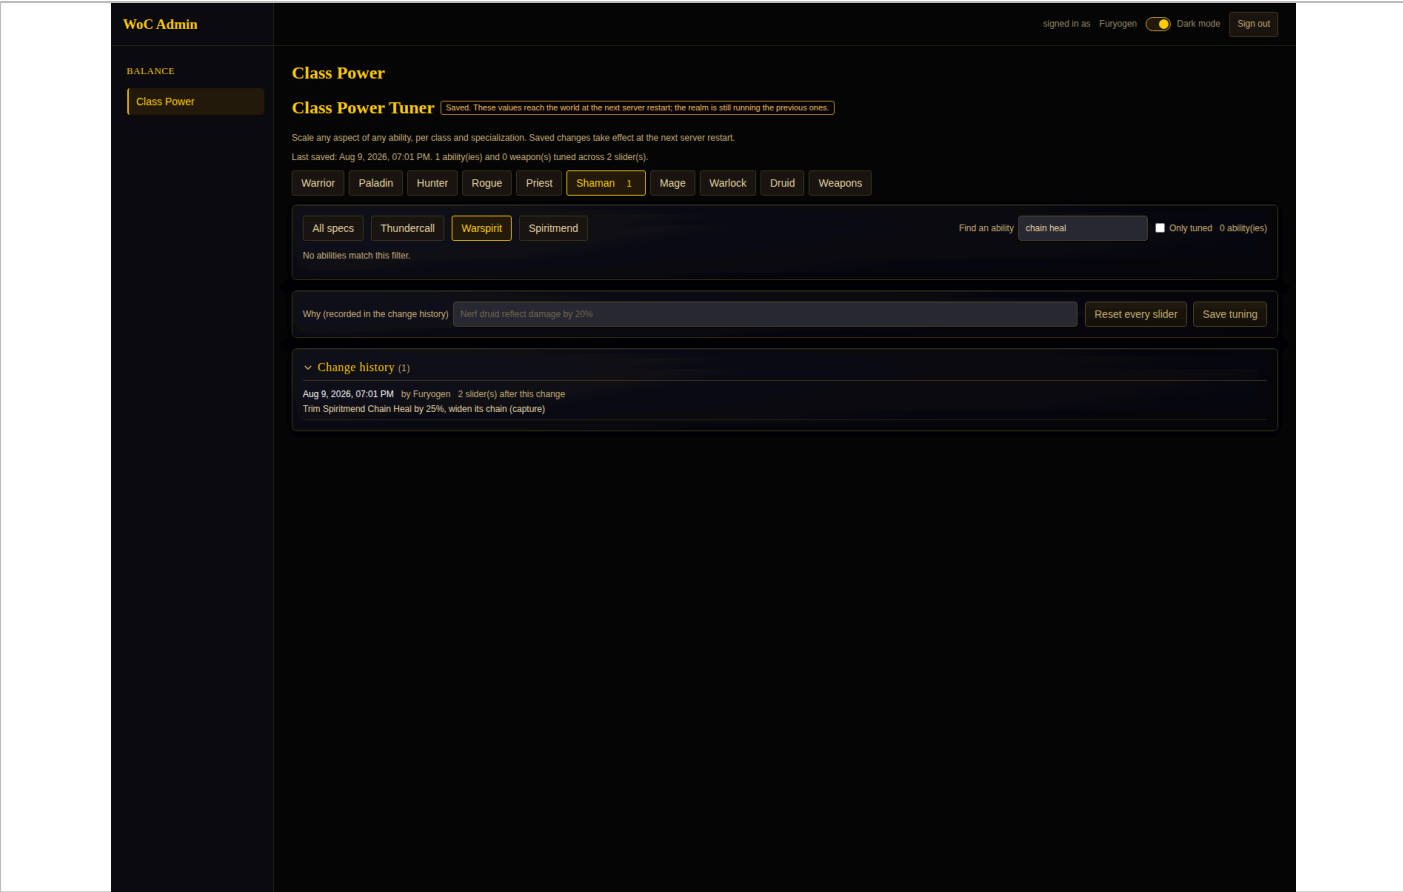

09-priest-doctrine-psalm-of-warding — Priest, Doctrine (Discipline): Psalm of Warding. Absorb shielding is its own channel, separate from healing, so a shield can be trimmed without touching a heal.

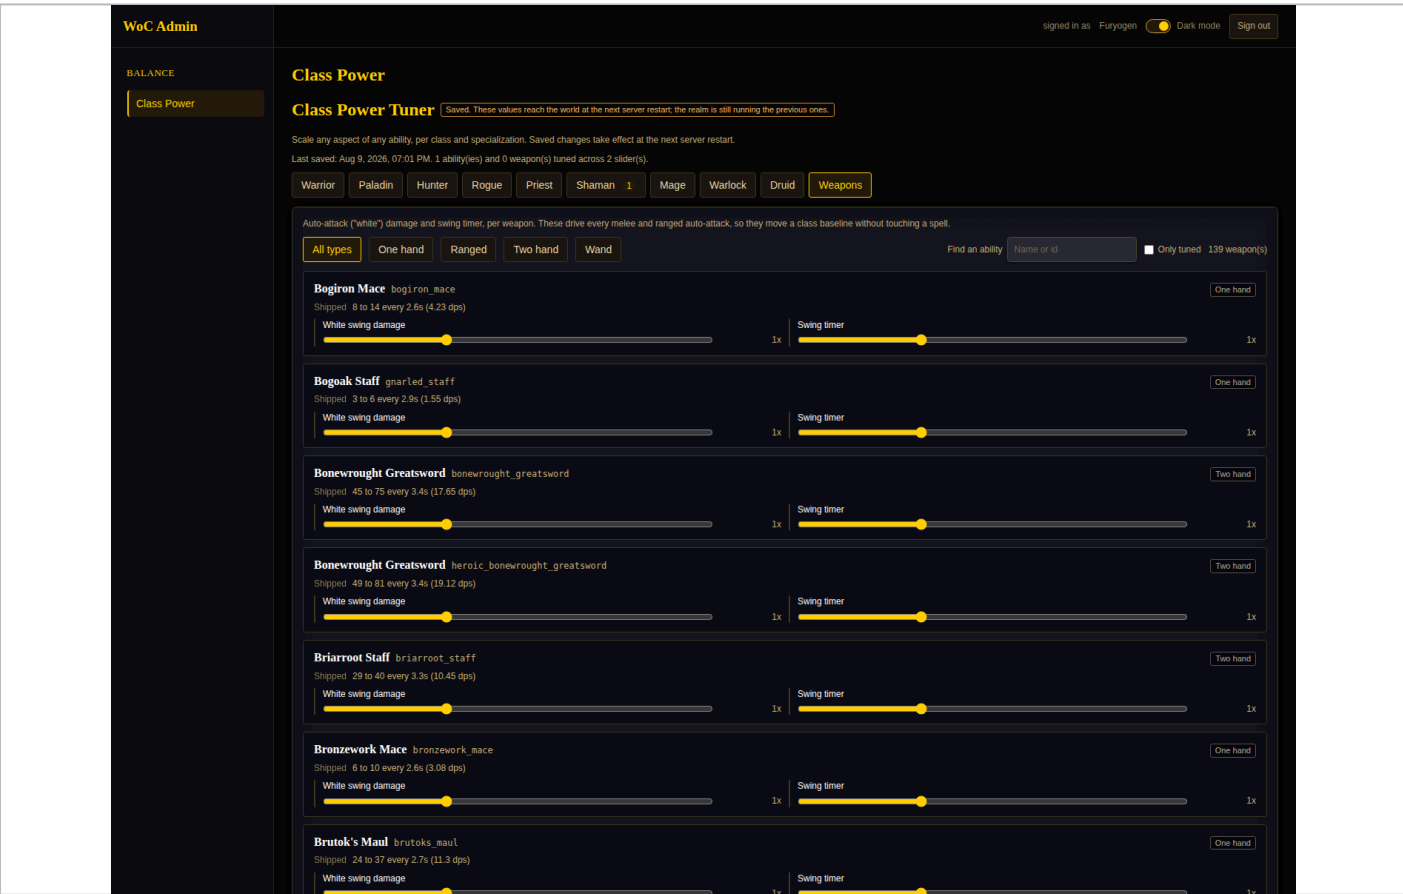

10-priest-vespers-mindfracture — Vespers (Shadow) Mindfracture, the damage side of the same class. The same six-slider shape a healer card has, pointed at damage instead.

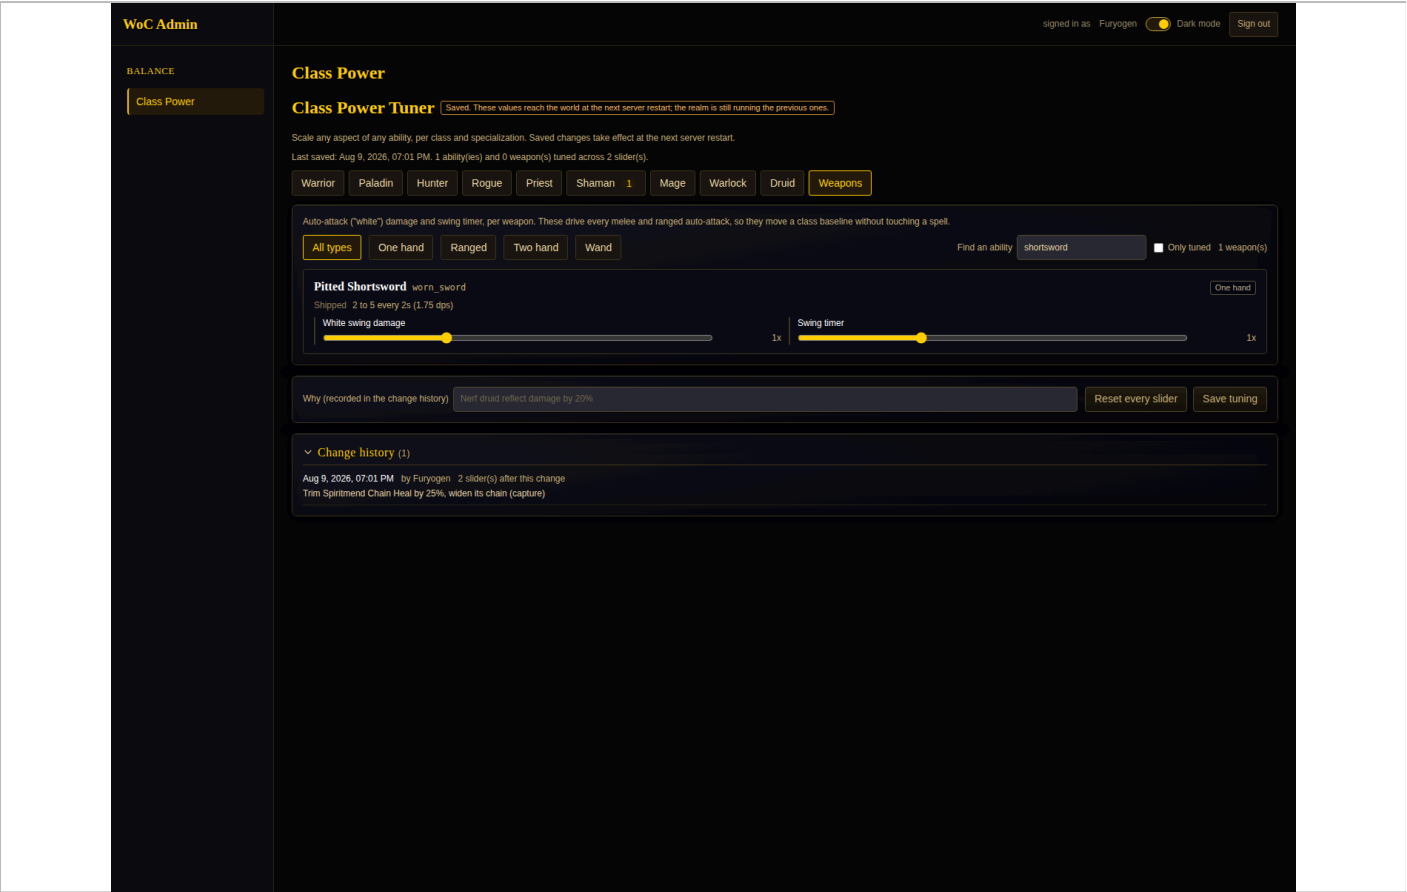

11-saved-pending-restart — After saving. The badge reports the change as pending a restart rather than implying it is already live, because tuning is installed once per boot.

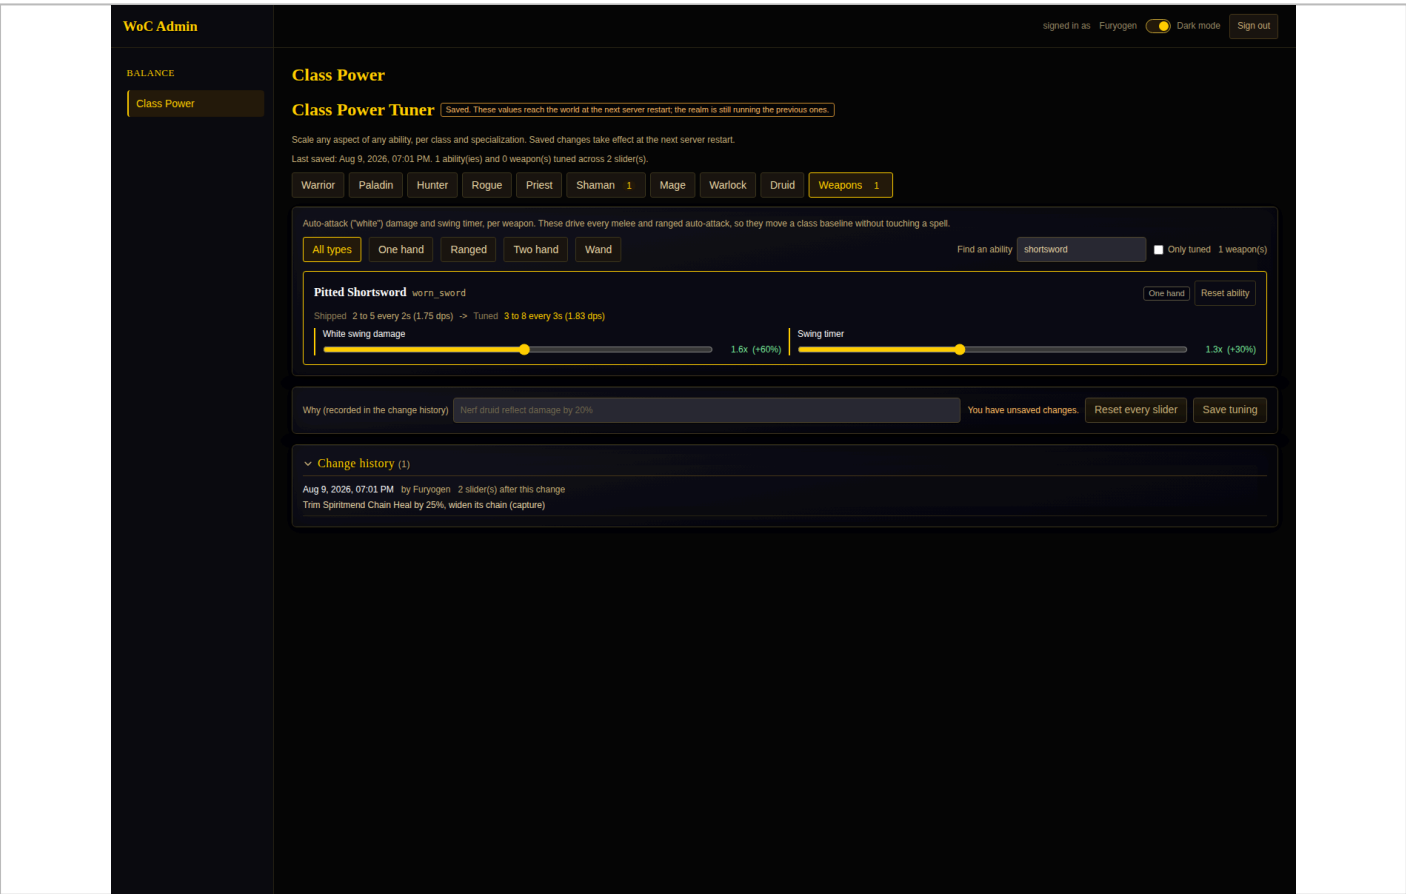

12-change-history — The append-only change history: who saved what, when, and the note they left.

13-weapons-overview — The Weapons window. Auto-attack ("white") damage and swing timer, per weapon, filterable by weapon type.

14-weapon-shipped — One weapon at its shipped numbers, with its damage range, swing timer and the resulting damage per second.

15-weapon-tuned — The same weapon with swing damage raised and the swing timer slowed. The recomputed damage per second shows the net effect of both sliders together.

Weapons: white swing damage and timer

139 auto-attack profiles. Every one exposes the same two channels, White swing damage (the min and max of the swing roll) and Swing timer (seconds between swings). A swing-timer factor above 1 makes the weapon slower, so it is a damage-per-second nerf; the tuner never lets the timer fall below one simulation tick.
